CAPTAIN WALKER .- The Washington | you get that fi thy thing, a cigar, in your correspondence of the New York Commercial Advertiser, gives the following interesting account of the brave Capt. Walker, who was slain in the battle of Huamantla:

The death of Capt. Walker has excited much interest here, and in the vicinity, where he was best known. He was an extra ordinary man, he was mild and gentle. He was one of those men of whom it may be said that the outward appearance does not fully express the inward. Small in person, retiring in manners, yet free and resolute in his mode of speech, he pleased all with whom he had intercourse (except the Mexicans.) Few men of his age (30) probably have been engaged in so many turbulent scenes. He was, of course, always expecting death, and was not surprised when it

In my observation of his personal bearing and conversation, I have judged that he cared less for the fame of his exploits than for the exciting pleasure of present action in the midst of danger. He remarked to me, with real modesty, that his services and dan gers in the early part of the war had been overrated. Men, he said had been accustomed to exaggeration in these things. Despite the rough and revengeful life which he led, he cherished the quiet feelings and affections incident to home. On his last visit to this city, when he called on the President, he told him that, having first paid his affections to his mother, he had now come to pay his respects to him fer his country's sake. He was then intent on furnishing himself and his men with all possible conveniences and weapons for their dangerous and destructive service.

He equipped them with new saddles, made under his own direction in this city. He obtained an ample supply of those fatal 'revolvers,' invented by Colt for the purpose of killing men. His expectation of life was as uncertain as his employment. His danger-daring spirit was a sure passport to an early death. He affected no military airs when here, not a hundredth part of the imcortance of a militia captain on parade; were citizen's dress, with a drab low crowned, bell snaped hat, furnished with loop and button, and lodged quietly at his brother's, a plain, pious Methodist, a carpenter like himself. Here many called to see the youthful hero, and if he chanced to make his appearance in public so as to be recognized, the welkin rang again. Alas! his poor mother would exchange all the shouts and all the soory earned by the deeds of her son, for one warn embrace of his living form, perhaps even of his dead one!

EXTRAORDINARY FECUNDITY .- The following facts are communicated to us by a gentleman of unquestioned veracity:— Francis Kenney, now residing at the cor-ner of Bridge and Johnson-street, in this city, married his wife Mary when she was 14 and he 16 years of age. When she was 15 she had her first child; at 17 she had two additional children; at 18 three more; at 20 she had four; at 21 she had three; and at 22 years she had two, which are now a few weeks old-making 15 children in 8 years. These extraordinary facts will probably arrest the attention of the faculty. We should like to know how many of these children are now living .- Brooklyn Star.

WHEN the remains of the gallant Walker were taken to Puebla, the botch of a carpenter made the coffin too small, whereupon Lt. Clinton, of Scott's company, 1st Pa., off with his uniform, rolled up his sleeves, and made him a coffin himself. He is a car penter, it is stated, and is from Moyamensing or Southwark, in Philadelphia. Lieut. Breese, of the same company, who is a blacksmith, entered a smithery and made the nails.

EXTENT OF THE UNITED STATES .-The United States have a frontier of more than 10,000 miles. We have a line of seacoasts of nearly 4,000 miles, and a lake coast of 1,200 miles. One of our rivers is twice the size of the Danube, the largest river in Europe. The Ohio is 600 miles larger than the Rhine, and the Hudson has a navigation 120 miles longer than the Thames. The State of Virginia is a third larger than England. Ohio contains 5,130,000 acres more than Scotland—From Maine to Ohio is further than from London to Constantinople, and so we might go on and fill pages, enumerating distances, rivers, lakes, capes, and bays, with comparative estimate of size, power, and population.

THE BOY THAT SMOKES .- What shall be said of the boy that smokes? Shall we pronounce any judgement against him? Shall we say that he is acquiring an evil habit? That he is becoming a slave to a master who, by and by, will be very cruel to him; that he is on the high road to dandyism; that he is beginning to be profligate with his money, &c. Oh, that this were the worst! What say the druggists, who knows the stimulating effects of tobacco? One and all, that it proves the first step to drunkenness. "No young man," says Dr. Alcott, "who uses tobacco' in any shape whatever, is or can be safe. He is apt to be thristy, and water never satisfies. Tobacco smoking feeds the love of strong drink in two ways-first, by creating a morbid thirst, and, second, by impairing the appetite for food and indirectly encouraging him who uses it to seek for that strength which food should give him in the use of extra stimulus. Let the friends of rest—beware of tobacco in every form." December, 1847 temperance—temperance men above all the Take care, then, temperance boys, how mouth. Abhor and detest it, for it is poison and death .- Youth's Temperance Advocate.

Boys .- Letting boys run wild in the streets is the cause of their turning out loafers, gamblers, bullies and blackguards long before they are men, and puts them beyond the hope of ever becoming orderly and respectable citizens. Boys' eyes and ears are always open; let them mix with fighting mobs a few times, and they will have acquired a taste for swearing, blustering, and fighting. They will consider it smart, and the next thing you hear of the hopefuls, will be that they have had a duel with shingles, or stuck their pocket knives into each other. So if you want your sons to grow up modrocrats and street tighters, let them run at large PRSBETERIAN MISSION.-It is stated in the "Foreign Missionary" that there are, under the care of the Mission of Allahabad, Northern India, a Mission College with 100 scholars: an orphan girl's school, with 60; seven boy's hazaar schools, with 300; and a female hazaar school, with, 60 scholars; making a total of 508 pupils.

The following testimony from an influential planter in Washington county, we take from the Macon Telegraph:

Washington Co., Ga., January 5, 1847. Dr. Hull—Dear Sir: It has been about three years since I commenced using your Fever and Ague and anti-Fever Pills, on my plantation. I have had a large number of cases of chills and fever and some few of bilious fever, and in no instance of either form of fever have I failed to effect a cure when directions were followed and they were taken at the commencement of the disease. I have had greater success in using your Pills, than with any other medicine I have ever used in my family; there is no doubt but that when used according to directions they will offect a speedy and radical Yours, with respect E. GREENWOOD, S. C., Dec. 6, 1847.

The Board of Trustees of the Greenwood Male and Female Academies, under the control of the Baptist Denomination, take pleasure in informing the friends and patrons of these institutions and the public in general, of the efficiency and success with which they have been conducted the present year: That Mr. and Mrs. Nicholls considering themselves permanently located in this place, the Board feel justified in affirming that under the able Rectorship of Professor R. H. Nicholls a thorough and complete course of instruction in the various branches of female education will be imparted to those committed to his care. And while the Board regret that tha increasing ill-health of Mr. W. L. Harris renders it necessary for him to discontinue the Rectorship of the Male Academy they congratulate themselves and patrons in having employed Mr. Allen Dederick as his successor. Mr. Dederick brings with him testimonials of the most satisfactory kind from the Rev. W. D. Strobel, the Rev. Geo. Neff A. M. and others, the authenticity of which as well as the high literary and moral character of the gentlemen giving them are substantiated by the Rev. John Bachman D. D. of Charleston S. C. Mr. Dederick has been teaching the present year in Georgia and our attention was directed to him as a gentleman well qualified to take charge of the Institution by the Rev. W J Hard and other gentlemen of the city of Augusta who are personally acquainted with him.
